

Yoshinori Sato

Professor at Department of History, Faculty of Letters, Tohoku Gakuin University

Received Ph. D from the University of Library and Information Science in 2003. After having been experienced in both library practice and research, he was appointed at Tohoku Gakuin University as a Professor of library and information science. He also serves as Guest Professor in National Institute for Informatics. His current interests include scholarly communication and publishing, and preservation of and access to cultural/historical heritage.